Course Title: Modern Chinese History: Culture, Economics, and the Globalization of Modern China

Reason for initiating, revising, or canceling:

China today is never out of the news: from human rights controversies and the continued legacy of Tiananmen Square, to global coverage of the Beijing Olympics, and the Chinese "economic miracle." It is a country of contradictions and transitions: a peasant society with some of the world's most futuristic cities, an ancient civilization that is modernizing as rapidly as possible, and a walled-off nation that is increasingly at the center of world trade. This course will help students pursue modern knowledge about China, including understanding its cultural and governing history, the rise and transformation of communism, and the recent modernization and globalization of China in relation to technological and industrial production.

This course fulfills the NMC social sciences elective requirement for any AA and BS degree offered at NMC.
